RUSSIANS CONTINUE TO ADVANCE

FORTIFIED VILLAGES CAPTURED

NEAR Rzhev, on the headwaters of the Volga, and at Stalingrad, 700 miles to the south-east, battles are raging, whose outcome may largely determine the result of the war. The more important struggle remains undoubtedly that in the South, where the panzer armies have created a situation fraught with the gravest dangers for the Russian troops, for the military unity of Central and Southern Russia, and for the richest sources of Russia's "black gold"—the oil—which maintains its military and economic might.

News of victories from the important front west of Moscow does not minimise the still unchecked perils confronting the steel metropolis of Stalingrad, but to the north-west the Russian ring of tanks, guns and men refuses to be broken, and to the south the defenders have thrown off another German attempt to break-through.

Moscow reports that the Germans are employing a million men for the offensive against the city, and the steady stream of reinforcements reaching Marshal von Bock is in itself a warning of the grim battles ahead.

On the Central front, overcoming stubborn resistance, Soviet troops have recaptured nine more fortified villages, and are continuing their advance relentlessly, while large reserves are waiting to follow up the first gains.—(Reuter)

STALINGRAD STILL IN DANGER

MOSCOW, Thursday.—Reuter's Correspondent here says: "General Zhukov's forces, advancing under a terrific air and artillery 'umbrella,' are to-day battering at the outskirts of Rzhev, vital German stronghold on the Central Front, while long-range Soviet guns pound the city incessantly. Russian infantry are capturing one strong-point after another. The Germans have been thrown out of nine more fortified villages, bringing the total to about 620 inhabited localities recaptured since the start of the offensive fifteen days ago. The Russians are having to fight hard for every yard of ground, waging minor battles for each trench and concrete pill-box."

Reuter's Stockholm Correspondent says: "Latest reports from the Stalingrad Front indicate that the German armies are now spread out in an almost continuous half-circle, relentlessly pressing in on the city. The German line begins in the North, between Kachalinsk and Dubovka, follows the east bank of the Don to Kalach, and finishes somewhere on the Stalingrad-Kotelnikovo railway. For the first time yesterday the Germans claimed that Stalingrad was being attacked from the West.

"There is little news from the North Caucasus front except for a German claim to have occupied Mozdok, 65 miles from the Grozny oilfields. Further heights in the Caucasus foothills are also stated to have been stormed.

BERLIN REPORTS

LONDON, Thursday.—The German News Agency says that in the Kaluga and Rzhev areas the Russians have succeeded in making certain local progress. German forces are said to be carrying out a systematic straightening of the front line. A military spokesman said: "Our defences in the Rzhev and Kalinin area have been taken back a few miles only at some places, with a view to making better use of defence possibilities. The Soviets have, so far, made only insignificant territorial gains.

Moscow Radio says that four large German transports have been sunk in the Baltic by a single Soviet submarine. Two—one of 12,000 tons and the other 7,000 tons—were sunk after a long hunt while in a large convoy. A third of 8,000 tons was sunk in a German port.—(Reuter.)

STOCKHOLM, Thursday.—Bombs and incendiaries fell in the Berlin suburbs of Zehlendorf and Dahlem last night when a Russian bomber flew over the district, say Berlin reports, which claim that no casualties or damage resulted. Three or four other Soviet 'planes are said to have flown over Koenigsberg, Danzig and Stettin.

German Radio also claimed that a tank unit had driven into the Soviet heavily fortified concrete defensive positions south-west of Stalingrad to a depth of 25 miles. Here, it claimed, the uint has joined forces with German infantry divisions.—(Associated Press.)

RUSSIANS IN RZHEV

MOSCOW, Thursday.—Street fighting of great bitterness is reported to be raging in the northern outskirts of Rzhev, on which several Russian columns have converged. Every house of any size is said to have been turned into a fort, and buildings are bristling with artillery. From the upper floors of the houses groups of tommy-gunners and machine-gun nests dominate the streets. The Germans are putting up a desperate resistance, for the city is of the highest strategical importance, but its fate seems to have been sealed by a well-planned enveloping movement, by means of which the Russians have cut the single link between this region and the main German Armies to the south-west.—(Times telegram, per Press Association.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Thursday.—To-night's Soviet communiqué states:—"During to-day our troops fought the enemy on the outskirts of Rzhev, south-east of Kletskaya, north-west of Stalingrad, north-east of Kotelnikovo and south of Krasnodar, and in the area of Prokhladnaya.

"In the area of Prokhladnaya our troops, after stubborn fighting, withdrew to new positions. South of Voronezh fighting is reported for an inhabited town on the west bank of the Don. On one sector of the Western front Soviet troops occupied several inhabited localities after hard fighting.

"In the area north-west of Stalingrad our troops launched counter-attacks against the German troops. As a result of the stubborn resistance of our troops the enemy is suffering tremendous casualties."—(Reuter.)

ZHUKOV PROMOTED

General Zhukov, commanding the Soviet armies on the central front, has been appointed Stalin's first Deputy Commissar of Defence. Moscow Radio announced to-night. General Zhukov is already one of several deputies.

SIX CONDEMNED MEN

CALL FOR REPRIEVE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.
BELFAST, Thursday.

The Northern Ireland Attorney-General, Mr. J. C. McDermott, has refused leave for the appeal to the House of Lords of the six Belfast youths under sentence of death for the murder of Constable Patrick Murphy. The executions have been fixed for Wednesday next, unless a reprieve is granted.

In a letter to Mr. D. P. Marrinan, solicitor for the defence, the Chief Crown Solicitor, Mr. J. V. S. Mills, said: "The Attorney-General has given this application his careful consideration, and has asked me to state that he finds himself unable to certify that the decision of the Court involves a point of law of exceptional public importance, and that he cannot, therefore, accede to the application."

Another five thousand signatures to the Reprieve Petition, most of them from Dublin, were lodged with the Ministry of Home Affairs to-day, making a total of 207,000. Mr. Sean McBride, Secretary of the Dublin Reprieve Committee, in a letter, stated that if they had sought signatures they could have got a million.

DUBLIN MEETING

A further appeal was made at a large conference in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night. The meeting was attended by delegates from all over Ireland, including Mr. Eamonn Donnelly and Mr. Denis Ireland, from Northern Ireland.

A resolution was passed asking the people of the whole country to make Wednesday next a day of national mourning in the event of the reprieve not being granted. This resolution stated that the conference, "conscious of the deep feeling that the execution of any of the six men would arouse, urges the Irish people to show the utmost restraint, and to make it known to the world that any such execution has not the sanction of the Irish people."

Another resolution pledged support to the Government of Eire in any steps they might take to secure the reprieve.

GOVERNMENT HELP

Mr. J. Larkin told the meeting that he had been on the delegation which had gone to Mr. de Valera asking for his co-operation in securing the reprieve. Mr. de Valera had said that he would do all that he could to help the movement.

The Committee had also asked English people who had been in this country, English public men, to try to get the British Government to effect the reprieve, and he, Mr. Larkin, had asked the British crew recently saved by an Irish ship to wire to Mr. Churchill and the Duke of Abercorn advocating the reprieve.

It had not been proved, he said, that any of the bullets which killed the constable had come from the guns which the six men had had.

Mr. Denis Ireland, representing the Association of Irish Protestants, said that he associated himself wholeheartedly with the aims of the meeting.

Telegrams appealing to the Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, for the reprieve of the six men have been sent by the chairman of Drumcondra Association Football Club, and the chairman of the Eire Boxing Board of Control.

In Portlaoighise and district 4,249 persons have signed a petition with the same object in view.

Resolutions have been passed by Wicklow County Council, Sligo Unemployed Men's Association, No. 9 Branch (Tramway and Omnibus) of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union calling for a reprieve.

INDIA QUIETER

BOMBAY, Thursday.—To-day's reports indicate that the situation is improving, notably in the Central Provinces and Bihar, though incidents and arrests are reported from parts of the United Provinces. No signs of the trouble have been reported from any of the great traditional recruiting areas of the country. In Punjab, the North-West Frontier Provinces and Hyderabad conditions are stated to be "as completely peaceful as before."

Mansion House meeting against Phoenix Park deer-killing.

HIGHER PAPER TOTALS

ANOTHER record went by the board in the house-to-house waste paper collection yesterday, when the Rathmines team of two collectors brought in three-quarters of a ton.

Of this total they secured 9 cwt. at one house, 3 cwt. at another and the remainder in small lots of two or three stones at other houses on their route. The previous highest total for one day was of 10 cwt., secured by a team which was lucky enough to find General O'Duffy on its calling list, and was given by him a garage full of old papers and books.

A North side team—that from the Phibsborough district—for the first time attained the objective of 6 cwt., being the first team to do this on the North side. The Harold's Cross-Terenure team also shot into the ranks of the leaders by bringing in a total of 8 cwt.

Referring to the 15 cwt. total of the Rathmines team, Mr. R. Buchanan, secretary of the company, said that this was a very fine achievement. The bringing in of such a quantity alone without any canvassing was almost a day's work in itself.

At many houses at which they called, he said, their collectors were still being told that all available paper was being used for lighting fires and for boiling kettles. He wanted to stress again the fact that people who were using paper for fuel were using material which they might sell for £4 per ton, whereas turf cost only 64 shillings per ton, and wood less than that, both of them of much higher fuel value than paper.

Apart altogether from the money loss they were inflicting on themselves by using paper, people should also remember the loss they might be inflicting on workers in the paper and printing trades, who might become unemployed through the lack of waste paper.

DOOMED DEER: CITY MEETING SUGGESTIONS

THE conference about the slaughter of the Phoenix Park deer, held in the Mansion House, Dublin, yesterday, struck a very strong "Prevention of Cruelty to Animals" note.

Of some seventeen societies invited to send representatives, including the Turf Club, the Royal Dublin Society, the Zoological Society, the I.T.A., the Civics Institute, and the Old Dublin Society, the only one which made an official contribution to the discussion was the National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, whose chairman (Dublin Branch), Miss L. Hillas; veterinary adviser, Mr. F. A. Heney, V.S.; inspector, Mr. Dockery, and a member of the Socety, Mr. F. S. Roberts, were among the small number of speakers.

Though the convener of the meeting, Mr. F. W. Ryan, spoke of severe difficulties connected with the proposed slaughter — viz., economic, financial, administrative, legal and humane—the only one which drew a strong response from the meeting was the mention of the humane difficulties. Subsequent speakers rose to re-echo this note. Dr. E. W. Lynch spoke of "this horrible orgy" which was being meditated. Mr. F. S. Roberts said it was a "most barbarous proposal." Mr. F. A. Heney referred to the prospect of a section of the Park being turned into a shambles of blood and entrails. Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., told a story of the terrific revulsion of a Boer War soldier who had been one of a military party sent into a corral to bayonet to death several hundred Boer cattle. Miss Hillas told how since a case reported of cruelty to goats at Howth she had not been able to walk over Howth Head without a feeling of sickness and how she feared lest the lovely Phœnix Park might come to have similar associations for her. All these statements of the cruelty involved in the slaughter of the deer drew warm applause from the meeting.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT

Some light was thrown on the methods contemplated for the slaughter of the animals in a report to the meeting by Inspector Dockery, of the N.S.P.C.A. The first arrangement proposed, he said, had been to let a rope-mesh fall over a group of about five or six animals. This mesh was to have been fixed to two 40-foot poles, which might, possibly, fall on the animals' backs. This plan had been dropped, and the "corral plan" adopted. According to this, there was to be an enclosure with a fenced-in avenue leading into it. This approach was to be about eight feet wide at the entrance, but at the neck leading into the enclosure it would be only wide enough to let one deer pass through at a time. When a deer passed into the enclosure, a barrier would be dropped, shutting it off from the others in the approach, and then the slaughtering staff would try to corner it and despatch it with the humane killer.

This plan was characterised as childish by Mr. Heney, who said if an attempt was made to drive deer into a trap like this they would stampede, go off at a speed faster than that of any race-horse, and, possibly, use their horns on anything which got in their way. The proper thing to do was to have the herd shot by good marksmen. He, with six or seven riflemen, had once shot a herd of twenty-seven deer in Tipperary in one afternoon. For the Phœnix Park shooting, Army marksmen might be called in.

SUSPENSION ASKED

The conference unanimously passed a resolution asking the Taoiseach to suspend the permit given for the slaughter of the animals, and to receive a deputation on the subject. The deputation is to consist of the Lord Mayor, who said that he had already spoken to Mr. de Valera on the subject; Mr. V. Rice, Mr. Heney, Lieut.-Col. Doherty, Mr. F. W. Ryan and Dr. H. Kennedy.

The conference also decided to constitute those present into a standing committee to deal with this and similar problems arising out of the emergency.

A suggestion made by Captain W. Flood Murphy that, in the event of the slaughter being allowed to take place, the Civic Guard should attend and stop any acts of cruelty was approved.

"DIFFICULT JOB"

A veterinary surgeon, with much experience in supervising the slaughter of animals, last night told an Irish Times reporter that the slaughter even of tame animals in the open air was a very difficult job, indeed, and needed very careful organisation. In the case of wild animals or semi-wild animals these difficulties were very much greater. Before the slaughter was allowed to begin the arrangements should be inspected and approved by a competent and experienced official.

Mr. W. Ahearne (Associated Merchandise, Ltd., who have the contract for killing the animals) said that the firm had done everything in their power to ensure the humane killing of the deer. The erection of the special corral had cost them about £150, and altogether they had spent about £500 in making their arrangements.

PARAFFIN SUPPLIES

DOMESTIC USERS' CASE

Although a quantity of paraffin has been allocated by the Department of Supplies for distribution to domestic users, a large number of them will not get their supply for September. The reason is that more than 3,000 retailers have not sent in their returns, and will not get their rations for next month. The Department of Supplies stated yesterday that ample time had been given for the despatch of the returns.

The September ration for domestic use will be half a gallon. It is hoped to increase the domestic ration for October, November and December if supplies come up to expectation. The amount of the ration will not exceed a gallon, however, if it even reaches that amount.

No paraffin can be given for domestic use to people who already have gas or electricity laid on to their houses.

The allowance of 5 gallons per month to churches, schools, public-houses, dairy farms, etc., will be resumed, it is hoped in October.

ROAD TRANSPORT OF GOODS

EXPERIMENTAL SCHEME

AN experimental scheme for the control of road transport of goods will be inaugurated in part of the County Mayo in October next.

In this area the distribution of merchandise by mechanically propelled vehicles will be in the hands of the railway company and other haulage operators, approved by the Minister for Supplies, who has initiated the scheme by Emergency Powers Order. A regular goods service, with a reduced scale of charges, will be begun, under the control of the Great Southern Railways Co., with a central depot at Ballina and parcels depots in the smaller towns and villages.

OBJECT OF SCHEME

The necessity for such a scheme lies in the petrol supply position, as well as in the shortage of tyres and spare parts. The effect of the scheme will be to reduce the number of lorries in operation in the area, and concentrate all the traffic in a smaller number, thus reducing as far as possible the number of miles travelled by empty or partly-empty lorries, and doing away with duplication of services. Privately-owned goods services will be replaced largely by scheduled services, giving a regular distribution of essential supplies. The depots will facilitate the collection and delivery of goods.

If the scheme is a success in Mayo it will be extended to other areas as soon as possible, so as to make the fullest use of such petrol, tyres and spare parts as are available. The area of the new scheme will be in the north of Mayo, above a line from the coast at Ballycroy to Laherdane, Attymas and Dromore West.

REDUCING WASTE

It has become increasingly imperative to produce some such scheme to assure that there would be no wasteful use of available supplies in transport. Since August 1st about 2,000 commercial vehicles of up to 30 cwt. capacity have been refused permits, and in July 945 fewer vehicles were taxed than in the previous month. Thus, in the past two months, over 2,900 such vehicles have ceased to operate. Nevertheless, petrol consumption, the Minister for Supplies found, was still too great, and further economies were necessary.

The permit system, which has been operating for a few weeks, has given rise to many complaints from individuals who regard themselves as unfairly treated in comparison with others in a similar way of business. A considerable tightening up in the system will be effected as the Department gains experience.

BUTTER SHORTAGE

RATIONING PROBLEM

The advisability of rationing butter has been considered by the Department of Supplies. Although rationing on the same system as that of tea and sugar is regarded as almost impossible, a scheme for the control of distribution is being worked out, and, if necessary, it will be put into operation.

The shortage of butter, of which complaints have been made to the Department, seems to apply only to Dublin, and the Department officials are not certain about its cause.

Consumption of butter has increased in the past year by almost 50 per cent., due to the shortage of lard and other edible fats. The amount put into cold storage this year is expected to be sufficient to carry over the winter to next April.

The difficulty of rationing butter is due mainly to the fact that so much of it is made by farmers. If a scheme of rationing creamery butter were started, it is feared that a good deal of the milk normally sent to creameries would be diverted to the manufacture of farmers' butter, and would give rise to an immense black market.

The Department's scheme would, if necessary, ensure an equitable distribution of butter.

Miss Louie Bennett, on behalf of the Irish Women Workers' Union, has written to Mr. de Valera, urging that steps should be taken immediately to alleviate the butter situation, which, she says, "must prove a source of ill-health as well as discomfort."

In her letter, she points out that there is now a serious shortage of butter in urban areas, and that in Dublin queues are lined up before dairy shops. Many families have been deprived of butter for days. She recalls that when, as early as May, her union drew the attention of the Minister for Supplies and the Minister for Agriculture to the threatened shortage, and begged that butter should be rationed, they were assured by Mr. Lemass that the position would be adequately safeguarded. Their own information was that there was no lack of potential butter if the farmers were given a fair price for the milk.

MIDDLE EAST

LORD MOYNE'S NEW POST

It is announced that Lord Moyne has been appointed Deputy Minister of State in the Middle East, to afford a measure of assistance and relief to the Minister of State. The volume of work to be carried out by the Minister on behalf of the War Cabinet has greatly increased in recent months. The presence of a second Minister in Cairo would enable visits to be made either by the Minister or his deputy to the other main centres in the Middle East outside Egypt. The post of Deputy Minister will carry Cabinet—not War Cabinet—rank.

Lord Moyne is aged 62. He was Colonial Secretary and Leader of the House of Lords from 1941 till February last. A son of the first Earl of Iveagh, he held a number of offices during his 24 years in the House of Commons as the Hon. Walter Guinness, among them being those of Under-Secretary for War, Financial Secretary to the Treasury, and Minister of Agriculture. He was created baron in 1932. He made his entry into politics as Conservative M.P. for Bury St. Edmunds in 1907.

Queen Wilhelmina returned by air to England on Wednesday night from her visit to Canada and the United States of America. The journey from New York to Foynes took nineteen hours.

SOLOMONS BATTLE SURPRISE

JAPANESE NAVAL FORCES WITHDRAW

A REUTER telegram from Washington early this morning stated:—

Japan's attempt to recapture the bases held by United States forces in the South-eastern Solomon Islands has failed. A United States Navy Department communiqué indicated this to-night when it announced that the Japanese surface forces have withdrawn from the battle.

The communiqué read:—

"SOUTH PACIFIC.—Since the issuance of the Navy Department Communiqué 112, there has been no further action on the sea battle off the Solomon Islands. Japanese surface forces appear to have withdrawn from the vicinity of our positions in the Tulagi area."

"ATLANTIC.—The United States destroyer Ingraham has been sunk as the result of a collision in fog in the Atlantic. The next-of-kin of those lost have been notified."—(Reuter.)

Communiqué 112, referred to, reported that the strong Japanese attack on Guadalcanal Island, near the Tulagi naval base, had been repulsed. Ten Japanese warships and four other vessels—presumably transports and supply ships—had been damaged. Japanese air losses in the battle were described by an American naval spokesman as "staggering." Officially, thirty-nine 'planes were stated to have been destroyed.—(Reuter.)

A Japanese communiqué yesterday says:—

"Japanese naval units off the Solomon Islands on August 24th engaged reinforcements of the United States Navy at sea east of the Solomons. Imperial air units immediately attacked, causing heavy damage and repulsing the enemy.

"Results ascertained up to August 27th are as follows:—Severe damage to one large aircraft carrier of a new type, damage to another aircraft carrier of a medium size; damage to a battleship of the Pennsylvania class.

"Japanese casualties comprise one destroyer lost and damage to a small aircraft carrier."

IN NEW GUINEA

Only bad weather prevented the Allies from stopping the Japanese convoy with troops from reaching Milne Bay, Japan's latest bridgehead in New Guinea, according to a despatch from an Allied operational base in the Pacific last night, quoted by Reuter in a despatch from Sydney.

Allied 'planes, it is stated, took a heavy toll of warships and transports as they approached the shore.

Very heavy fighting is taking place on the beaches between the two peninsulas that form New Guinea's easterly tips, where Allied land forces, which had been forewarned, were waiting for the Japanese troops.

Bitter patrol clashes are now taking place in the Kokoda area of New Guinea. Australian troops in this area have been surprised by the stature of the Japanese troops opposing them—5ft. 10in. in height, and broad in proportion. In Sydney the new Japanese thrust in New Guinea is considered by some observers to be an indication that the Japanese feel that the Solomons battle is going against them.—(Reuter.)

DUKE'S BODY TAKEN TO WINDSOR

TO LIE IN ROYAL CHAPEL

The body of the Duke of Kent was brought south by train last night from Scotland, and will lie in the Albert Memorial Chapel, Windsor Castle, until the funeral at Windsor. The train, travelling from the north of Scotland, made a special stop at a small highland village in the morning to allow the coffin to be placed in it. During the night it had remained at Dunrobin Castle, Highland home of the Duke of Sutherland, after having been carried down the hillside where the 'plane crash occurred, and across miles of rough moor to a waiting ambulance.

The King and Queen returned to London yesterday from the country, their brief holiday cut short by the Duke's death. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester accompanied them. The Duchess of Kent has not left her country home, The Coppins, at Iver, Bucks, where yesterday messages of condolence from the Duke's friends continued to reach her.

The train conveying the Duke's coffin also bore those of Lieut. John Lowther, R.N.V.R., pilot officer; the Hon. Michael Strutt, and L. A. C. Hales, the Duke's valet. Lieut.-Col. the Hon. Sir Piers Legh, Master of the King's Household, travelled with the train.

The bodies of three airmen killed in the crash also began their journeys south by train yesterday morning. An R.A.F. escort accompanied the remains to the station. Flight-Sergeant Andrew Jack, of Grangemouth, Scotland, only survivor of the accident, passed a comfortable night in the Scottish hospital, where he is being treated for burns and other injuries.

The Funeral Service for the Duke of Kent will take place in St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle.

EIRE'S MESSAGE

The Irish Government has sent to King George a message of sympathy, the Irish Times learned last night.

AIR RAID OFF DIEPPE

HITS ON FOUR SHIPS

"Hurricane bombers, escorted by Spitfires, attacked enemy shipping off Dieppe this morning," said last night's British Air communiqué. "Four ships were hit by bombs.

"Soon after midday a squadron of Bostons, escorted and covered by a strong force of fighters, bombed the German airfield at Abbeville. Bursts were seen on the runways and in dispersal areas.

"One Boston, which was hit by anti-aircraft fire, was lost. One member of its crew was killed. The others, two of whom are wounded, were rescued from the sea. Our fighters had many combats with enemy fighters during this raid and the rescue operations.

"Three enemy fighters were destroyed.

"Nine of our fighters are missing."

According to the Air Ministry News Service, all the aircraft engaged in the Dieppe operation returned safely.

The German Radio last night stated: "At 6.30 p.m. to-day formations of British bombers, escorted by fighters, attempted to raid Rotterdam. They were intercepted by German fighters before reaching their objective and forced to turn back."—(Reuter.)

BERLIN, Thursday.—The German High Command said to-night: "The Royal Air Force are keeping up their violent attacks on the coast of the occupied western territories. Shortly before 1 p.m. to-day twelve Bostons, strongly protected by fighters, appeared over the Somme estuary in the area of Abbeville. Some high explosive bombs dropped on Abbeville aerodrome caused negligible damage to a runway, and near one hangar German Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitts engaged the British fighters in numerous violent dog-fights, in which 13 British 'planes crashed in flames, without loss to themselves."—(Reuter.)

Alderman T. W. Burden (Lab.) was returned unopposed yesterday for the Park Division of Sheffield.

HEARD BY LISTENERS

DUBLIN'S GREETINGS TO DUBLIN

RINGING up the Irish Times in hundreds last night, short-wave radio listeners voted the Dublin-to-Dublin "greetings" broadcast a great success.

From Boston, Mass., U.S.A., Station WRUL (World Radio University) relayed over a clear ether greetings, messages of good cheer and remembrances from citizens of Dublin, New Hampshire, to citizens of Dublin, Ireland.

Reception was good, said the listeners. Their enthusiastic calls, from Rathgar to Raheny, and from Chapelizod to Charlemont street, jamming the switchboard, they spoke of their interest in hearing direct from this little New England town, with its "wooden houses, green doors, and 'Emerald Cafe.'"

Although the wavelengths were given incorrectly in yesterday's Irish Times, due to an error in translating American megacycles into metres, these short-wave "fans"—many of whom are regular listeners to WRUL—had no difficulty in picking up the programme. The correct wavelengths, which readers should note for the re-broadcast on August 31, are:—Station WRUL, Boston, Mass., 25.4 metres and 19.58 metres.

STUDIED IN DUBLIN

The broadcast was introduced by Professor Harold Crawford Sterne, who spent six years as a student and journalist in Dublin, and who, speaking from the Town Hall, Dublin, New Hampshire, sent his own greetings to Baile Atha Cliath. To Dubliners in this country he conveyed a message from Mr. Vincent Chapin, who was until recently Secretary to the American Legation here. Mr. Chapin, he explained, had been unable to attend the broadcast himself, but had asked him to send greetings to all his friends in Dublin. Among the many whom he recalled by name were Seamus O'Sullivan, the late Professor Trench, of Trinity College, Dublin, and the Choirmaster of Christ Church Cathedral.

"Were I in Dublin, Eire, now," said Mr. Chapin, in his message, "I might be just leaving Davy Byrne's or Jammet's; standing at the corner of Trinity College, and catching a tram for Rathfarnham, Rathgar or Rathmines. Or, perhaps, I would be taking an outside car, up by Stephen's Green, to Mother Mason's."

Mr. Chapin had spoken warmly, said Professor Sterne, of Ireland's folk-lore, poetry, of her humour and hospitality, and of her homes.

Professor Sterne introduced Henry Dowling, great-great-great grandson of Henry Strongman, a weaver, who came to Boston from Dublin, Ireland, in 1736. "If he was a weaver from Dublin," remarked Professor Sterne, "he probably came from the Coombe, because that was where the Huguenot families lived." Strongman became the first prominent citizen of the New Hampshire Dublin.

SCENERY ALIKE

The Professor said that he believed that the American town took the name of Dublin, not because it was founded by a Dublin man, but because its scenery was so startlingly like that of its Irish counterpart. "Although our rivers are more like the Poddle and the Dodder than magnificent Anna Liffey; though our mountains are bigger than even the mighty Sugar Loaf or Bray Head, and though the sea—the Atlantic—is sixty miles away from us," he continued, "these are the only three differences. The rest of the scenery might have been lifted from Co. Dublin.

The townland, he said, was thirty-six square miles. The fields were divided by stone walls. Houses were mostly of wood. The town was like many Irish towns: it had one main street, with two or three branch streets. The city buildings, including a Town Hall, a library, post office, a church, two general stores, two garages and a restaurant named the "Emerald Restaurant." Nearby was a lake, one of the few lakes outside Switzerland where there were silver trout. The rates were a dollar and a half on every hundred dollars—about 6s. on £20. The town expenses for the fiscal year were 57,000 dollars—£11,000. Fifty per cent. of these were spent on the school and roads. The remainder was devoted to officials' expenses and other items, such as the library.

The American Dublin signed off in Irish. "Good-bye, now, Baile Atha Cliath," said Professor Sterne, "Slainte 'gus saoghail agat. Slainte go brath!"

So bad with RHEUMATISM she couldn't sew a button on

"I COULD not do my housework, I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I took all kinds of medicines. I rubbed it and plastered it — but it was still there. I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor sew a button on. ... was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and now I feel fine — thanks to Kruschen."—(Mrs.) J. H.

The primary cause of rheumatism is Uric Acid, which collects in the joints and muscles. Ordinary aperient salts, which act on the bowels only, can't drive out this acid.

There's only one way to drive the Uric Acid out. It must be made to flow away in the liquid you pass through your kidneys. Kruschen is five times more effective than other salts in stimulating your kidneys and washing away the painful acid crystals. You can see the effect of Kruschen in the increased amount of water you pass.

Every chemist sells Kruschen in 1/9 bottles.

KRUSCHEN

Going Grey?

Restore Natural Colour this Easy Way

Don't let time mark you out by greying your hair. Put back the clock by giving your hair back its natural youthful colour. It's easy, inexpensive, safe, quick. Make up the following mixture: To a bare half-pint of water add one ounce of Bay Rum. Then mix in contents of one small box Orlex Compound. Finally add a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any chemist can supply these ingredients or make up the mixture. Applied twice weekly this non-greasy, non-sticky, scientific mixture soon gives your hair the glow of youthful colour—it dyes it, doesn't colour the scalp. Get rid of grey hair. Start today—the Orlex way.

NO LEAVE TO APPEAL

The Court of Criminal Appeal (the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Hanna and Mr. Justice Hinds) yesterday refused an application for leave to appeal in the case of Joseph McSharry (36), Sligo Mental Hospital attendant, a native of Kinlough, Co. Leitrim, against his conviction in the Central Criminal Court, and sentence of seven years' penal servitude for having caused grievous bodily harm to Edward Gallagher (52), charge attendant in the hospital, with intent to do grievous bodily harm and of malicious wounding. The application was based on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and that additional evidence was available.

RE-TRIAL ORDERED

Holding that there was no evidence of corroboration, the Court of Criminal Appeal (the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Hanna and Mr. Justice Hinds) yesterday allowed the appeal of Patrick Cornish (68), farm labourer, Killinick, Co. Wexford, who had appealed against his conviction and sentence of nine months' imprisonment, imposed by Judge Comyn, at Wexford, for having, as alleged, had carnal knowledge of a girl aged 16 years. It was ordered that the cost of the appeal and retrial be borne by the State.

AUCTION SALES

Thos. Deskrell, Ltd.—On 9th September this firm will hold an auction of house and furniture on the premises at 3 Allesbury Gardens, Sydney Parade, Ballsbridge, at 12 noon. On 10th September they will offer at their saleрooms, South Great George's street, at 1.15 p.m., 46 Grafton street, to be sold as a going concern, including leasehold interest, goodwill, fittings, etc.; also a profit rent of £183 9s. 3d. per annum, arising out of Crosthwaite Hall, Dun Laoghaire, 7 Parnell avenue, off Parnell road, Harold's Cross, and 33 Lower Beechwood avenue, Ranelagh.

Corrigan and Co.—On 16th September, in 4 Grafton street:—"Woodfield," 51 Howth road, Clontarf; two houses, on either side of Haddington road, with possession; and a going concern in the tobacco and confectionery business.

Dublin Orchards Raided.—Fines of 10/- were imposed in several cases of women charged with entering orchards to steal fruit, who appeared yesterday before District Justice McCarthy in Dublin. An orchard owner complained that his orchard had been raided several times, and the District Justice said that everybody in Dublin was being robbed in this way.

Fees for Infirmary Patients.—South Infirmary, Cork, Committee of Management yesterday decided to enforce strictly a regulation that not more than half the patients in the hospital may be non-paying patients. In addition, the committee adopted the recommendations of the Cork voluntary hospitals, including an increase in charges to paying patients from 28/- to 35/- per week, and an increase to 42/- per week for patients sent in by the different boards of health. A proposal to make a charge for extern patients was adjourned.

DUBLIN'S FIRST "BOYS' TOWN"

OPENING NEXT MONTH

THE youth-training scheme drafted by the Department of Education to combat the effects of unemployment in Dublin youths may be extended to the case of girls in the near future. The scheme as regards boys shortly will pass beyond its theoretical stage.

On Saturday week the Minister for Education, Mr. T. Derrig, will commission the first Youth Leaders of Comhairle le Leas Oige, the organisation founded to administer these centres, at St. Mary's College of Domestic Science, Cathal Brugha street, Dublin. During the following week the first centre, at 14 Upper Mount street, will be formally opened, probably by the Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid, Archbishop of Dublin, who has been keenly interested in the scheme since its inception.

The scheme has been prepared by the Department of Education, and a sum of £5,000 has been set aside towards its costs from public funds this year. Describing the scheme in the Dail in June, Mr. Derrig said that it was thought more advisable, instead of raising the school-leaving age, to establish youth-training centres, at which attendance would be voluntary, in selected areas in Dublin in which the effects of unemployment are most marked. The City of Dublin Vocational Education Committee has undertaken the administration of the scheme, and has entrusted its organisation and maintenance to a sub-committee of prominent social workers, all of whom have an intimate knowledge of the problem. This sub-committee has taken as its title Comhairle le Leas Oige, and has as its director Mr. Martin Gleeson.

QUALIFICATIONS

The first centre—very similar in its conception to the American "Boys' Town," which obtained world-wide publicity through the film of that name—is to be conducted on a much freer basis than applies normally to schools. The Youth Leaders, who will be commissioned at the end of next week, and who will take over the new centre a few days later, have just passed examinations in physical training; handicrafts, such as woodwork and so on; art and art crafts, library training and first-aid. In addition to instruction in suitable subjects by these highly-trained leaders, the forty to sixty boys whose interests will be served by the centre will have other such activities as hiking, camping, illustrated lectures and talks, songs and plays, and sports to hold their interest.

The opening of 14 Upper Mount street merely marks the first stage in the development of the scheme. The organisation, with as little delay as possible, will lay the keel of their second venture, a similar centre in North Dublin, probably in the Denmark street area. Every effort will be made to increase the fitness of the Youth Leaders—all young men, who volunteer to undertake this work in the evening hours which follow their normal occupations—to deal with the problem of unemployed youths. During next month the Very Rev. D. Vaughan, P.P., C.C.; Mr. Martin Gleeson and Mr. J. O'Farrell will deliver a series of lectures on "The Youth Problem" to a number of potential youth leaders at the Dominican College, Eccles street, under the auspices of the Legion of Mary.

NEW PATENT PEAT FUEL

IRISH INVENTORS' EFFORTS

A NEW method of manufacturing peat fuel has just been patented, according to the official journal of Industrial and Commercial Property. It comprises the cutting of a thin layer of peat from the bog, the depth of the cut being so adjusted that the average moisture content of the cut material is most suitable for merging the material into blocks, which are dried. One of the most efficient methods already known is to remove a very thin layer from the surface of the bog in the form of a powder, which is briquetted in a press.

The fourteenth statutory report of the Controller of Industrial and Commercial Property for the year ending March 31st, 1942, reveals that the number of applications for trade marks and patents is only slightly lower than the previous year, and that the office seems to be reaching a somewhat static war position. During the year 250 patents were granted, 39 less than the previous year. The majority of applications for patents and trade marks came, naturally, from Ireland, Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The United States asks for nine patents and 23 trade marks; Germany applied for nine patents and 12 trade marks, and Switzerland also applied for nine patents. Foreign applications continued to decrease. Native applications advanced 25 per cent.

DRINKS FROM PLANTS

Food occupied the attention of many Irish inventors, who attempted to bleach flour; make bread from wheaten flour fortified with potatoes, and derive emergency drinks from selected root crops and plant leaves. A German invention in the plastics field comprises a method of welding strips of thermoplastic material for the manufacture of clothing, handkerchiefs, cart awnings and similar articles. Some Irish inventors were busy converting refractory coal-dust into ready combustible briquettes, while a foreign applicant proposed to surmount the difficulty of mechanically dehydrating peat by chemical destruction of the cellulose gel, which resists the removal of water by pressure.

Among the many ideas for alleviating the transport problem was one which suggested an engine which ran on producer gas, and was automatically supplied with a variable amount of petrol to enrich the gas in accordance with the changing demands of the load and the quality of the gas. In the agricultural sphere attention was given to the improvement of harrows and the provision of better horse-shoes, while there was an interesting method of ensiling potatoes for fodder. Despite the shadow of war, many inventors maintained a lighter vein, and among their products were a golf ball with a resilient core of plastic material, and an advertising display—devised by a woman—which simulates a flight of butterflies in a window decked with flowers.

TEA MERCHANT FINED

Fines amounting to £110 were imposed at Clonmel Court on Michael Francis Nugent, merchant, Newcastle, for breaches of Emergency Powers Orders relating to the sale of tea and sugar in excess of the prescribed ration, and failure to keep the required records of cocoa purchases.

W. Behan, an officer of the Department of Supplies, stated in evidence that in respect of 2001b. of tea and four cases of cocoa, of which no record was kept, defendant said that, as the goods were smuggled and bought at a high price, he could not very well record them. This was denied by defendant.

A summons for failing to record the purchase of 2801b. of tea was dismissed, as the goods were purchased before the Order was made. A summons for selling tea to other than registered customers was also dismissed.

Describing it as a very serious offence and deserving imprisonment, the District Justice imposed a fine of £100 for unlawfully disposing of tea in excess of the prescribed ration to registered customers, and on two other charges imposed fines of £5 each.

CONTROL OF THE MEDITERRANEAN HAMPERED BY AXIS

ALEXANDRIA, Thursday. — Important steps have been taken to improve co-operation between British naval and air forces in the Mediterranean. Admiral Sir Henry Harwood disclosed this to-day at the first interview he has given since he succeeded Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham as Commander-in-Chief Mediterranean Fleet. He said the air factor was of supreme importance in the Mediterranean, but the Axis advance to El Alamein had deprived the Allies of airfields from where fighter protection could be given to the Fleet in certain areas. West of Alexandria air support in adequate strength could at present only be given for a relatively short distance. A successful outcome of the land fighting with a return of the army to Benghazi would entirely alter the position, facilitating fighter protection for the fleet, and so simplifying its work.

"If we can retake Cyrenaica, then our very large air force in the Mediterranean area would be able to operate far forward against land and sea targets, and this, backed by our surface and submarine offensive, should enable us to stop supplies reaching the Axis in Africa," Admiral Harwood continued. "Everything depends on land operations. We have plenty of submarines, which have had a good measure of success, but the enemy is bringing lots of troops across the Mediterranean in big troop-carrying 'planes."—Reuter.

AXIS BASES BOMBED

DESERT ACTIVITY

CAIRO, Thursday. — Allied Air Forces last night continued their attacks on aerodromes in the forward area of the desert battle front. Royal Air Force medium bombers, supported by naval 'planes, attacked four landing grounds between Mersa Matruh and Sidi Haneish, bombs bursting on the runways and among dispersed aircraft. Three fires were started. Tents at Mersa Bagush were also bombed.

In the battle area another force of medium bombers, also assisted by naval aircraft, attacked dispersed vehicles, tanks, barrack and dug-in positions. Direct hits and near misses were made. Simultaneously light bombers of the South African Air Force bombed and machine-gunned concentrations, scoring direct hits on enemy vehicles and starting a fire. Between Rahmin and Fuka night fighters shot up tents and motor transport and silenced three Breda guns.—(Reuter.)

AXIS ACTIVE OVER MALTA

Two aircraft were shot down on Wednesday night when Axis activity over Malta was on a larger scale than usual, says a Reuter message. There were two bombing raids, but little military damage was caused. Yesterday a force of Axis fighters was intercepted and dispersed by Spitfires. There were some civilian casualties and damage.

SUPPLIES FOR ALLIES

WASHINGTON, Thursday. — A partial arrangement has been signed whereby Portugal will supply wolfram, rubber and other strategic materials from Portuguese East Africa to the united nations in exchange for coal, copper-sulphate and other American products.—(Reuter.)

MORE CYCLE THEFTS

For stealing bicycles two men—Patrick Brennan (21), of Waterford street, Dublin, and Thomas Keating (23), of Upper Sean MacDermott street—were sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Two months' imprisonment was imposed on Charles Robinson, dealer, Capel street, Dublin, for receiving stolen bicycle spares by District Justice McCarthy in the Dublin District Court.

Tennis Surprises

YESTERDAY was Charlie Flatly's day in the junior tennis championships. There were thrills galore, without frills. The players got down to their task in a "do or die" manner. On a sun drenched courts the day produced with one surprise —Norman Brown, last year's junior (under 15) semi-finalist, gave a fine performance in beating the Blackrock boy, Norman Brennan. He succeeded in slowing down Brennan to such good effect that he won in straight sets before Brennan was able to get into his stride. Alice Blayney, a wonder girl, who also figured in doubles and mixed doubles yesterday, created the other surprise. Her performance was a creditable one in ousting Peggy O'Reilly, the Kenilworth champion.

High light of the day's matches was the hectic struggle between Joseph Hackett, the potential champion, and the "Tilden" of the tournament, big Shane Jameson, who delivered some surprise packets. So tense was his attack at the outset that he took the first set at 6-2. Hackett then settled down dourly, reliable player that he is, and, showing marked steadiness, he won the second set 6-0. Hackett led 5-2 in the third set, when Jameson launched a counter-attack to get within a point of five all. Hackett repelled the attack, and eventually won the set and match.

Charley Davis, seeded No. 2, and T. Lydon, club mates, put up a fine display, Davis qualifying for the semi-final to-day, in which he will meet Norman Brown. Raymond Williams, of Dundalk, was another bright particular star. After a prolonged duel he defeated B. McElhinny, one of the surprise players of the tournament.

In the junior championship the promising Newry boy, Malachy Shortt, advanced further. He will meet Gerry Rice in the semi-final to-day, and this should prove a "needle" affair.

In the senior girls' championship the playing-through champion, P. Conner, greatly impressed. She opposed C. Egan in a ding-dong three-set epic tussle. Miss Egan, last year's junior champion, pressed last year's senior champion all the way. E. Hallinan, the stylish Cork girl, put up a stout fight against the suave Maeve Brennan, and D. Wiley won a protracted tussle with Miss Hallinan's sister, whom she beat on the centre court.

In the girls' junior championship Monica Moran, the conqueror of N. O'Reilly, the polished Dundalk girl, further enhanced her reputation by reaching the semi-final, in which she will be opposed by that sterling player, Marguerite Roche; while it is expected that the other semi-final between Mary Roche, M. Moran, Marguerite Roche and Miriam Meenan will result in a foursome.

The following are yesterday's winners:

Senior Boys' Championship—Quarter finals—V. Hackett, Junior—G. Rice, M. Davis, P. Lyons, Junior—D. Rice, M. Boyd, H. O'Donoghue, H. Barniville.

Senior Girls' Championship—Quarter finals—P. Conner, Blayney, M. Brennan, D. Miley, Junior—E. Meenan, Mary Roche, M. Moran, Marguerite Roche.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME

11.0, D. Miley v. M. Brennan (senior girls' semi-final); 12.0, M. Meenan v. M. Roche; M. Moran v. M. Roche (junior girls' semi-finals); 2.0, P. Conner v. A. DUBLIN EXCHANGE

Trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange was on a restricted scale yesterday, but the tone in most cases remained firm.

The recent optimistic opening of Guinness's mills was more than justified, for the company announced a final dividend of 13 per cent. and a bonus of 5 per cent., making 29 per cent. for the year, as compared with 26 per cent. a year ago.

Even the most optimistic had not hoped for such an increase, for the highest forecast had only been 11 per cent. The shares are the chief centre of attraction all day, and after active dealings closed 4/4½ higher at 102/10½.

Home Government Funds maintained their recent strength, and British funds showed slight, 3½ p.c. War Loan 106¾. Dublin Port and Docks 5 p.c. Bridge stock spurted 7½ points to 110.

Banks held steady to firm, and Bank of Ireland stock gained a point at 327.

Rails were buyers in places, and Great Northern Ord. rose to 23¾, while Great Southern Ord. jumped 25/- to 15½.

Alliance Gas Ord. were again depressed and fell over a point to 19/-. Ranks (Ireland) Pref. declined to 25/-, but Killeen Paper Pref. made headway to 9/-.

Imperial Tobacco Ord. shaded off to 129/3, while Baldwin Ord. quoted 6/- and Mexican Eagle Oils 10/9.

GOVERNMENT NOTICES.

EMERGENCY POWERS (KEROSENE RATIONING) ORDER, 1942.
NOTICE TO LICENSED DEALERS, RETAILERS AND DISTRIBUTORS.
The Minister for Supplies gives notice that the issue of permits for domestic use will be resumed in September, and the MAXIMUM ration for users of each kerosene customer registered with a licensed kerosene retailer will be half a gallon for the month of September.
Permits to enable retailers to obtain supplies for issue to their customers are in course of issue to all retailers who have furnished the Department with particulars of their customers on the printed forms supplied to each retailer for the purpose. Notwithstanding the request covered by each licensed retailer to complete his register by the 15th August and furnish the Department with a return of his customers on completion of the register, more than three thousand retailers have failed to do so. The Minister cannot accept responsibility for any inconvenience to the customers of retailers who have failed to furnish the necessary information promptly.
Domestic users are warned that it is illegal to register with more than one retailer, and heavy penalties will be imposed for any such contravention of the Kerosene Rationing Orders.
It is hoped that an additional allowance of kerosene, in no case exceeding 5 gallons per month, may be granted for charitable schools, licensed premises, etc., and for users by dairy farmers, but such allowances cannot be made available before the 1st October next.

NURSES' STUDY SCHEME

Plans for graduate nurses to study for the Diploma in Nursing and the Sister Tutors Diploma are being considered by the Universities in Dublin, at the instigation of the Irish Nurses' Organisation, who are urging the co-operation of the universities in this matter; at present, graduate nurses, desirous of taking either of these courses, must go to England, and the Organisation is anxious to establish facilities for them at the Irish Universities.

The Organisation is receiving many inquiries from nurses concerning these courses, and matrons of hospitals are extremely interested, for, as holders of the Diplomas increase, so does the standard of the nursing profession in Ireland rise.

Miss Eleanor Grogan, Chief Organiser of the Irish Nurses' Organisation, told the Irish Times yesterday that the response to the recent appeal for members had been excellent, and there were now over 1,500 recruits enrolled, including the staffs of 18 Dublin hospitals—matrons, sisters, staff and student nurses. The remaining hospitals have given Miss Grogan a date in the near future, when nurses return from their holidays, when she may address recruiting meetings.

Miss Grogan is leaving Dublin early next month on a tour of organisation to all the big centres in Eire. "It is our aim to enrol every nurse in Ireland as a member of the Organisation by the end of the year," she said. "Until we can speak as representative of at least 75 per cent. or 80 per cent. of the nursing population we are not in a position to deal with the various problems concerning the betterment of conditions for the profession, so at the moment we are concentrating mainly on recruiting."

WEDDING

Browne—O'Flanagan.—The marriage took place on Wednesday, with Nuptial Mass and Papal Blessing, at University Church, St Stephen's Green, Dublin, of Mr. James Browne, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Browne, of Bishopstown, Wexford, and Miss Margaret O'Flanagan, only daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Flanagan, of Harcourt street, Dublin. The Rev. Laurence O'Neill, S.J., officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. Patrick O'Grady. Miss Nellie Browne (sister of the bridegroom) was bridesmaid, and Mr. Henry O'Flanagan (brother of the bride) was best man. After a reception, held in the Shelbourne Hotel, by the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Browne left for the West of Ireland.

Glanville—Carter.—The wedding took place on Wednesday last at Abbeyleix Methodist Church of Mr. Albert W. Glanville, son of the Rev. A. E. and Mrs. Glanville, of Belfast, and Miss Violet Carter, daughter of the late Mr. Richard Kingsmill Carter, and of Mrs. Carter, Coolacurragh House, Leix. The Rev. A. E. Glanville officiated, assisted by the Rev. Hugh Ritchie. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. T. H. Carter, was attended by one bridesmaid, Miss Violet Lalor. Mr. Hubert Topping was best man. The honeymoon is being spent in the South of Ireland.

NO PAY FOR CHAIRMAN

The election of Chairman of Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation will prove a very open affair, since none of the parties represented has obtained a majority. The parties are:—Ratepayers 4, Fine Gael 3, Fianna Fail 2, Labour 2, Progressives 2, and Independents 2—15. The outgoing Chairman, Mr. D. F. McCabe, did not seek re-election to the Corporation, and he retires after forty years' service as a public representative in South County Dublin. The allowance of £400 a year will not be enjoyed by the new Chairman, as no provision was made for it in the estimates adopted last March.

Britain's Fuel

Nearly four months ago the British Government was confronted with a serious challenge. The casus belli was fuel. Mr. Churchill's Government, having discovered—somewhat late in the day, according to its critics—that grave inroads had been made upon the country's fuel reserve, had decided that only drastic action would meet the case, and, acting upon the recommendations of a committee under the chairmanship of Sir William Beveridge, had announced the adoption of a scheme of rationing. The scheme was welcomed by a large section of the people, but opposed by powerful "interests" and a correspondingly powerful batch of newspapers. These opponents argued that rationing was unnecessary, and would inflict undesirable hardship upon the people. They held that the people never had been asked to restrict the consumption of fuel on their own account, and that their spirit of sacrifice ought to be tested before the law ventured to intervene. This attitude was supported by the formidable 1922 Conservative Committee of the House of Commons. The Government surrendered. It agreed to postpone the introduction of fuel rationing, and, instead, to initiate a campaign of "publicity," designed to secure economy in the use of fuel. Weeks and months passed, but nothing happened: there was no sign of the promised appeal to the people: it began to look either as if the position in regard to fuel was not so bad as the Government had implied, or as if the Government had forgotten about it. Last weekend, however, a striking advertisement appeared in the British newspapers. In essence, it consisted of an appeal to the people to use less fuel; but the appeal was of a curiously precise and practical kind. It recommended a fuel "target" at which every household should aim—a limit of consumption, in other words, to which every household, according to the latitude in which it lived and the number of rooms in the house, should try to confine itself. Such and such a number of "fuel units" was allotted, and every "unit" was equivalent to such and such a quantity of electricity, coal, gas or paraffin oil: within the limits of the "target" the household's quota could be distributed according to pleasure.

The restrictions, as recommended, are fairly severe—not in comparison with the rigours of the various rationing schemes in operation on this side of the Channel, but as compared with the comfort that British citizens have enjoyed in respect of fuel hitherto. It is not their severity, however, that has created something very like an uproar in certain sections of the British Press. It is the form in which the Minister of Fuel has chosen to couch his appeal. What has happened is that the people of Great Britain are being asked to reduce their consumption of fuel to precisely the same limits to which it would have been reduced compulsorily if the rationing scheme of four months ago had been approved by Parliament. There is, of course, all the difference in the world between a system of compulsion and a system of voluntary sacrifice; yet it is hard to blame the newspapers which suspect a nigger in the woodpile. These newspapers believe that the Government has initiated this scheme of voluntary restriction as a means of smooth and easy transition to a system of rationing—in other words, that it has gone back upon its promise of four months ago. They do not mince words. Quite apart from any breach of promise, they say, the campaign for economy has been postponed for an unreasonably long time; if economy was so urgent four months ago that only a certain consumption could be permitted to every household, surely the situation has become so much worse in the meanwhile that the reduction ought to be even more drastic. What, they ask, has the Government done to stimulate production? How many skilled miners has it brought back from the armed forces? What economy has it attained in the use of fuel by industry and the public transport services? It seems that another domestic battle is brewing across the Channel—such another conflict as was not infrequent during the last Great War. It is not a matter of direct importance to Ireland, except inasmuch as any improvement in Great Britain's fuel supply may entail an improvement in our own, while any deterioration may make matters even worse for us than they are now. Ireland remains dependent, to a dangerously large degree, upon imported coal; and if the British cannot produce and store enough for their pressing needs, this country is bound to suffer.

"Boys' Town"

Mr. Thomas Derrig announces that the first of the new youth training centres will be opened in Dublin in about a fortnight. On June 1st of this year the Minister told Dail Eireann that to raise the school-leaving age would be a social and economic, rather than a purely educational, problem. Many families not only cannot afford to keep a son or daughter at school for any additional time, but require the wages which the young people might be earning in the world. The raising of the school-leaving age, though unquestionably a desirable reform, would have to face the determined and understandable opposition of such families, as well as of those of greater wealth which fail to see that education is more than a matter of useless "book-learning." In the circumstances, there can be no question that the establishment of youth-training centres is the most intelligent step that could be taken by a not always intelligent Department. The primary object, as the Dail was informed, is "to remedy the deterioration of young persons, especially boys, which results from long periods of unemployment." Juvenile unemployment has long been recognised as one of the greatest problems which the modern State must face. The boy who leaves school with no definite object in view, and with no specialised training, often enters on a long period of unemployment, in the course of which mental and physical deterioration is accompanied too often by moral deterioration. The Department's youth-training scheme is the first realistic effort to find work for so many idle hands. The programme of the centres will not entail a mere return to the dreary routine of schooling. Handicrafts, arts and physical training will have their place, as well as sport, hiking and camping, songs and plays; indeed, the Minister appears to aim at that judicious mixture of mental and other activities, the lack of which is the basic flaw in the secondary school curriculum. Young men will be trained there for the profitable and enjoyable use of leisure, as well as for the exercise of definite crafts. In addition, one hopes, an attempt will be made to give them an active part in the administration of the centres. The famous American "Boys' Town"—which is, perhaps, the prototype of the centres—owes a great deal of its success in turning out good and responsible citizens to its plan of entrusting responsibility for administration to the boys themselves, and not of confining it to the leaders. There scarcely could be a more satisfactory training for democracy. The initial problem which must be solved is that of turning curiosity, which will be the first reaction of the youths for whom the scheme has been set afoot, into permanent and real interest. Their inborn suspicion of "schemes" of all sorts must be allayed at once. This will be the task of the leaders of the centres; it may be the most difficult part of their work. The success or failure of the youth-training centres will depend not upon those who have inaugurated the plan, but upon those who are to administer it. There can be no "Boys' Town" unless they are able to win the interest and co-operation of the boys themselves.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

A LIFETIME of cogitation has convinced me that in this Anglo-Irish literature of ours (which for the most part is neither Anglo, Irish, nor literature) (as the man said) nothing in the whole galaxy of fake is comparable with Synge. That comic ghoul with his wakes and mugs of porter should be destroyed finally and forever by having a drama festival at which all his plays should be revived for the benefit of the younger people of to-day. The younger generation should be shown what their fathers and grand-daddies went through for Ireland, and at a time when it was neither profitable nor popular.

We in this country had a bad time through the centuries when England did not like us. But words choke in the pen when one comes to describe what happened to us when the English discovered that we were rawther interesting peapul ek'tully, that we were nice, witty, brave, fearfully seltic and fiery, lovable, strong, lazy, boozy, impulsive, hospitable, decent, and so on till you weaken. From that day the mouth-corners of our smaller intellectuals (of whom we have more per thousand births than any country in the world) began to betray the pale froth of literary epilepsy. Our writers, fascinated by the snake-like eye of London publishers, have developed exhibitionism to the sphere of acrobatics. Convulsions and contortions foul and masochistic have been passing for literature in this country for too long. Playing up to the foreigner, putting up the witty celtic act, doing the erratic but lovable playboy, pretending to be morose and obsessed and thoughtful—all that is wearing so thin that we must put it aside soon in shame as one puts aside a threadbare suit. Even the customers who have been coming to the shop man and boy for fifty years are fed up. Listen in the next time there is some bought-and-paid-for Paddy broadcasting from the B.B.C. and you will understand me better.

This trouble probably began with Lever and Lover. But I always think that in Synge we have the virus isolated and recognisable. Here is stuff that anybody who knows the Ireland referred to simply will not have. It is not that Synge made people less worthy or nastier, or even better than they are, but he brought forward with the utmost solemnity amusing clowns talking a sub-language of their own and bade us take them very seriously. There was no harm done there, because we have long had the name of having heads on us. But when the counterfeit bauble began to be admired outside Ireland by reason of its oddity and 'charm,' it soon became part of the literary credo here that Synge was a poet and a wild celtic god, a bit of a genius, indeed, like the brother. We, who knew the whole inside-outs of it, preferred to accept the ignorant valuations of outsiders on things Irish. And now the curse has come upon us, because I have personally met in the streets of Ireland persons who are clearly out of Synge's plays. They talk and dress like that, and damn the drink they'll swally but the mug of porter in the long nights after Samhain.

The Plain People of Ireland: Any relation between that man and Synge Street in Dublin where Bernard Shaw was born?

Myself: I don't think so, because Bernard Shaw was born before Synge.

The Plain People of Ireland: The Brothers run a very good school there—manys a good Irishman got his learnin there. They do get a very high place in the Intarmediate and the Senior Grade every year.

Myself: Faith you're right.

The Plain People of Ireland: But of course your man Shaw digs with the other foot.

Myself: Aye.

WHATELY AND NEWMAN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Hartland will find the information he seeks in Geoffrey Faber's "Oxford Apostles," published in 1933. Mr. Faber, a grandnephew of the Rev. F. W. Faber, who became head of the Brompton Oratory, had access to family correspondence, and his book is the most objective and illuminating study of the Oriel circle of all the literature on the period. He writes: "The news (of the appointment to Dublin) produced a strange commotion in Newman's mind. In spite of the formal break between his old master and himself which his part in the Peel election had brought about, and in spite of the fact that his path was to Whately's what a tangent is to a circle, he jumped at once to the conclusion that Whately would want him to go to Dublin. A month passed and no word came. Still Newman believed that it would come, and vexed himself and Hartlett with the answer that he would make." Mr. Faber concludes with a reference to Newman's "injured vanity."

Mr. Hartland, I am sure, recognises that the Apologia is far from presenting a complete portrayal of the psychology of Newman's development. Rather is it a brilliant example of spiritual rhetoric, the story of a sentimental journey for the benefit of sentimental Anglicans of the last century.—Yours, etc.,

W. G. SIMPSON.

LORD CAMROSE

The visitors to Arus an Uachtaran yesterday included Lord Camrose, the London newspaper owner, who is on a short visit to Ireland, and, with his wife, has been staying at the Gresham Hotel for the last few days. To-day they leave for Killarney, where they are to be the guests of Lord Kenmare.

Lord Camrose and his brother, Lord Kemsley, have had remarkable careers in the newspaper business, where their achievements have rivalled those of the brothers Harmsworth, of Dublin origin, who became Lord Northcliffe and Lord Rothermere. Born in South Wales, where their father was an Alderman of the Merthyr Tydfil Corporation, the Berry brothers became owners of important London newspapers while they were comparatively young men. Lord Camrose is proprietor of the Daily Telegraph, and has been its editor-in-chief since 1928. He is also chairman of the Financial Times and of Amalgamated Press, Ltd., and was editor-in-chief of the Sunday Times. His brother, Lord Kemsley, is chairman of Allied Newspapers, Ltd., of the Daily Sketch and Sunday Graphic, and is the present editor-in-chief of the Sunday Times.

LATE JUDGE MEREDITH

When the Court of Criminal Appeal sat yesterday, the Chief Justice referred to the recent death of Mr. Justice Meredith, and said that he wished, on his own behalf and on behalf of his colleagues on the judicial bench, to tender to Mrs. Meredith their profoundest sympathy, and the expression of their sense of the great loss which the judiciary had sustained by his passing.

Mr. Basil McGuckin, K.C., senior member of the Bar Association in court, joined in the expression of sympathy, and said that Mr. Justice Meredith's death was keenly felt by the members of the Bar, to whom he had always shown the greatest courtesy.

LONDON LETTER

50 FLEET ST., LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

SIR ARCHIBALD BODKIN, Director of Public Prosecutions, who is Chairman of a Quarter Sessions, has called public attention to a point which war conditions have greatly accentuated. Local magistrates, merely after taking two oaths, are entitled to administer the law, without any previous training, or even judicial experience. There is a feeling that, especially in towns, stipendiary magistrates are desirable, and sometimes urgently needed. The majority of the benches of voluntary workers, however, discharge their duties with care and mercy, and magistrates' clerks are selected with special care, and exercise their powers of guidance admirably.

Reclaimed Moor

The Devon County Agricultural Committee has reclaimed some thousands of acres of derelict land and made it produce food. In the late autumn of last year the reclaiming of 400 acres of Hatherleigh Moors was begun. To-day it is an inspiring sight to stand on the edge of that vast saucer and see 40 acres of golden wheat being stooked, 150 acres of oats swiftly ripening, and 30 acres of potatoes and 40 of rape on land which was a year ago covered with rank grass, gorse, bracken and heather. Then it was worth less than a shilling an acre for rough grazing. To-day £10 an acre is a conservative estimate of value

HAD 3 OPERATIONS FOR STOMACH ULCER

After Trying all sorts of Remedies

This man's trouble was a painful one, which even three operations did not put right. Yet he did find relief in the end, as he describes in his letter:—

"I am writing in gratitude for what your wonderful Rennies have done for me. I suffered for years with my stomach, and, after trying all sorts of remedies, I was advised by the doctor to have an operation for an ulcer. After being at home for six months I was as bad as ever. I was then sent to the Infirmary for another operation. I have had three operations altogether. then started taking Rennies, and I found wonderful benefit. I have not had any pain since. I cannot praise them too much."—J. W.

The effect of Digestif Rennies is so wonderful, because they contain 15 separate ingredients, comprising antacids to neutralise acidity, absorbents which reduce stomach gas, and digestive ferments which actively aid digestion. Rennies dissolve in the mouth. They become active at once, because they reach your stomach full strength—not weakened with water.

All Chemists sell Rennies: 7d. & 2/- pkt.
